

Note the limestone fracture line running from the upper left to the lower right of the photo. The inside arch is still pronounced in this photo, but it was later cut deeper due to water penetration. The depression running along the outside of the print is here shown to be slightly deeper than that of the inside. Note the bulge at the base of the 5th. metatarsal. The interior "ball" and entire metatarsal base are still very well defined in this photo of the Bauanthropus I print.
