

The picture on the top is of another footprint at Dinosaur State Park. The modern man whose foot you see put that foot into the footprint from the past. It fitted comfortably.

The footprint below (excavated by the Baugh team) was 16 inches long. The footprints from Dinosaur State Park are now eroded. The casts taken at the Baugh excavations on the McFall site are basically the same as those pictured from the State Park.

