

In both photos the contour of the human foot fits very well (other than for size) in the Clark print. Notice the ridge of stone around the footprint, indicating mud displacement and a slower gait.